RUBBER • ART • STAMPS

Hot Tips from the Art Department!

1. You may underestimate how much your handmade cards are appreciated. Take time to add a signature card to the back of each card that acknowledges you made the card and for whom. A date is always a nice addition.
2. Watercolor pencils can instantly turn a novice into a watercolor artist. Don't be afraid! The watercolor will lie quietly on the page, going nowhere, until you add the water and begin gently moving it around. Play with it on scrap, see what it can and might do, before taking it to your final piece. You will soon realize that you are the one in control and that you can do marvelous things with that paint brush!
3. Adding ribbon, raffia or even shiny cording can do wonders to put a finishing touch on a handmade card. It most often looks best tied into a bow and attached in the upper left hand corner. Be adventurous and let the streamers flow loosely, making sure no two are the same length.
4. Remember, a rubber stamp is just a pattern. It can be stamped on paper products for making cards, calendars, tags, and so on. But remember also, a rubber stamp may be pressed into clay or even cookie dough, printed on fabric for an embroidery pattern, stamped on glass and wood as a painting pattern and much, much more. Think of ways to get the most use possible out of your rubber art stamp collection.
